

Ape. Till I be gentle, stay thou for thy good morrow.
When thou art Timon's dogge, and these Knaues honest.

Tim. Why dost thou call them Knaues, thou know'st them not?

Ape. Are they not Athenians?

Tim. Yes.

Ape. Then I repent not.

Iew. You know me, Apemantus?

Ape. Thou know'st I do, I call'd thee by thy name.

Tim. Thou art proud Apemantus?

Ape. Of nothing so much, as that I am not like Timon.

Tim. Whether art going?

Ape. To knocke out an honest Athenians braines.

Tim. That's a deed thou'd dye for.

Ape. Right, if doing nothing be death by th' Law.

Tim. How lik'st thou this picture Apemantus?

Ape. The best, for the innocence.

Tim. Wrought he not well that painted it.

Ape. He wrought better that made the Painter, and yet he's but a filthy peece of worke.

Pain. Yare a Dogge.

Ape. Thy Mothers of my generation: what's she, if I be a Dogge?

Tim. Wilt dine with me Apemantus?

Ape. No: I eat not Lords.

Tim. And thou should'st, thou'd'st anger Ladies.

Ape. O they eat Lords;

So they come by great bellies.

Tim. That's a lascivious apprehension.

Ape. So, thou apprehend'st it.

Take it for thy labour.

Tim. How dost thou like this Jewell, Apemantus?

Ape. Not so well as plain-dealing, which wil not cast a man a Doit.

Tim. What dost thou thinke 'tis worth?

Ape. Not worth my thinking.

How now Poet?

poet. How now Philosopher?

pe. Thou lyest.

poet. Art not one?

Ape. Yes.

poet. Then I lye not.

Ape. Art not a Poet?

poet. Yes.

Ape. Then thou lyest:

Looke in thy last worke, where thou hast begin'd him a worthy Fellow.

poet. That's not feign'd, he is so.

Ape. Yes he is worthy of thee, and to pay thee for thy labour. He that loues to be flattered, is worthy o'th flatterer. Heavens, that I were a Lord,

Tim. What wouldst do then Apemantus?

Ape. E'ne as Apemantus does now, hate a Lord with my heart.

Tim. What thy selfe?

Ape. I.

Tim. Wherefore?

Ape. That I had no angry wit to be a Lord.

Art not thou a Merchant?

Mer. I Apemantus.

Ape. Traffick confound thee, if the Gods will not.

Mer. If Trafficke do it, the Gods do it.

Ape. Traffickes thy God, & thy God confound thee.

Trumpet sounds. Enter a Messenger.

Tim. What Trumpets that?

Mes. 'Tis Alcibiades, and some twenty Horse

All of Companionship:

Tim. Pray entertaine them, giue them guide to vs.
You must needs dine with me: go not you hence
Till I haue thank you: when dinners done
Shew me this peece, I am ioyfull of your fights.

Enter Alcibiades with the rest.

Most welcome Sir.

Ape. So, so; their Aches contract, and sterue your supple ioynts: that there should bee small loue amongst these sweet Knaues, and all this Curtesie. The straine of mans bred out into Baboon and Monkey.

Alc. Sir, you haue sau'd my longing, and I feed
Most hungrily on your sight.

Tim. Right welcome Sir:

Ere we depart, we'll share a bounteous time
In different pleasures.

Pray you let vs in.

Exeunt.

Enter two Lords.

1. Lord. What time a day is't Apemantus?

Ape. Time to be honest.

1. That time serues still.

Ape. The most accursed thou that still omitst it.

2. Thou art going to Lord Timon's Feast.

Ape. I, to see meate fill Knaues, and Wine heat fooles.

2. Farthee well, farthee well.

Ape. Thou art a Foole to bid me farewell twice.

2. Why Apemantus?

Ape. Should'st haue kept one to thy selfe, for I meant to giue thee none.

1. Hang thy selfe.

Ape. No I will do nothing at thy bidding:

Make thy requests to thy Friend,

2. Away vnpeaceable Dogge,

Or Ile spurne thee hence.

Ape. I will flye like a dogge, the heeles a'th' Ass.

1. Hee's opposite to humanity.

Comes shall we in,

And taste Lord Timon's bountie: he out-goes
The verie heart of kindnesse.

2. He powres it out: Plutus the God of Gold

Is but his Steward: no meede but he repayes

Seuen-fold about it selfe: No guift to him,

But breeds the giuer a returne: exceeding

All vse of quittance.

1. The Noblest minde he carries,

That euer govern'd man.

2. Long may he liue in Fortunes. Shall we in?

Ile keepe you Company.

Exeunt.

Hoboyes Playing lowd Musicks.

A great Banquet seru'd in: and then, Enter Lord Timon, the States, the Athenian Lords, Ventigins which Timon redeem'd from prison. Then comes dropping after all Apemantus discontentedly like himselfe.

Ventig. Most honoured Timon,

It hath pleas'd the Gods to remember my Fathers age,

And call him to long peace:

He is gone happy, and has left me rich:

Then, as in gratefull Vertue I am bound

To your free heart, I do returne those Talents

Doubled with thanks and seruice, from whose helpe

I seru'd libertie.

Tim. O by no meanes,

Honest Ventigins: You mistake my loue,

I gaue

I gaue it freely euer, and ther's none

Can truly say he giues, if he receiues:

If our betters play at that game, we must not dare
To imitate them: faults that are rich are saue.

Vint. A Noble Spirit.

Tim. Nay my Lords, Ceremony was but deuic'd at first

To set a glosse on faint deeds, hollow welcomes,

Recanting goodnesse, sorry ere 'tis showne:

But where there is true friendship, there needs none.

Pray sit, more welcome are ye to my Fortunes,

Then my Fortunes to me.

1. Lord. My Lord, we alwaies haue confest it.

Ape. Ho ho, confest it? Handg'd it? Haue you not?

Tim. O Apemantus, you are welcome.

Ape. No: You shall not make me welcome:

I come to haue thee thrust me out of doores.

Tim. Fie, th'art a churle, ye haue got a humour there

Does not become a man, 'tis much too blame:

They say my Lords, Ira furor brevis est,

But yond man is verie angrie.

Go, let him haue a Table by himselfe:

For he does neither affect companie,

Nor is he fit for't indeed.

Ape. Let me stay at thine apperill Timon,

I come to obserue, I giue thee warning on't.

Tim. I take no heede of thee: Th'art an Athenian,

therefore welcome: I my selfe would haue no power,

prythee let my meate make thee silent.

Ape. I corne thy meate, 'twould choake me: for I should nere flatter thee. Oh you Gods! What a number of men eats Timon, and he fees 'em not? It grieues me to see so many dip there meate in one mans blood, and all the madnesse is, he cheeres them vp too.

I wonder men dare trust themselves with men.

Me thinks they should enuie them without knives,

Good for there meate, and safer for their liues:

There's much example for't, the fellow that sits next him, now parts bread with him, pledges the breath of him in a diuided draught: is the readiest man to kill him. 'Tas beene proued, if I were a huge man I should feare to drinke at meales, least they should spie my wind-pipes dangerous noates, great men should drinke with harnessse on their throates.

Tim. My Lord in heart: and let the health go round.

2. Lord. Let it flow this way my good Lord.

Ape. Flow this way? A braue fellow. He keeps his tides well, those healths will make thee and thy state

looke ill, Timon.

Heere's that which is too weake to be a sinner,

Honest water, which nere left man i'th mire:

This and my food are equals, there's no ods,

Feasts are to proud to giue thanks to the Gods.

Apemantus Grace.

Immortal Gods, I craue no pelfe,

I pray for no man but my selfe,

Grant I may neuer prone so fond,

To trust man on his Oath or Bond.

Or a Harlot for her weeping,

Or a Dogge that seems asleepeing,

Or a keeper with my freedome,

Or my friends if I should need 'ems.

Amen. So fall too't:

Richmen sin, and I eat root.

Much good dich thy good heart, Apemantus

Tim. Capitaine,

They
